A Great Location

York University has more than 50,000 students spread over two campuses, Keele and Glendon, both of which are located in Toronto. The modern, all encompassing Keele campus is a self-contained community with extensive state-of-the-art facilities including the Ontario Archives, restaurants, a shopping mall, banks and a medical/dental clinic. It is home to a number of faculties including Education, Environmental Studies, Fine Arts, Graduate Studies, Health, Liberal Arts & Professional Studies, Osgoode Hall Law School, the Schulich School of Business, and Science and Engineering. Keele is the place to study for most of our undergraduate and graduate students, and offers students a wide array of programs and experiences.

York's Glendon campus is the premier study destination in southern Ontario for bilingual education. It offers students the opportunity to study undergraduate and graduate programs in English and French at a small liberal arts school with a close-knit multicultural community of 2,600 students. Glendon's beautiful, park-like campus is set in a quiet mid-town neighbourhood, yet is only moments away from the boutiques, restaurants and nightlife of downtown Toronto.
